Lesson 5: ASSESSMENT. Reading-Writing Worksheet K

Recommended Levels: I, II

You Be the Judge!

Directions: Read the letter below. It was an entry for LAL Level I. If you were a judge for LAL, would you advance this letter to round 2? Why or why not? Circle whatever errors you find. Some errors are grammatical but the letter itself has other weaknesses. If necessary, review the previous worksheets you completed during your LAL lessons and then apply them to assessing this letter.

Dear Rachel Roberts,

I am a national ranked rock climber. I am considered as a sponsored athlete at the age of eleven! I even taught two actors how to rock climb for a movie! I am on a team called (its a little weird) “The Ape Factory” (I told you it was weird) in my hometown. One day, I made a 5.12—which is the hardest climb in the gym and no grown-up’s could do it except me. Enough about me, let’s talk about magic and wonder in the fabulous world of Avalon!

You know when you get really interest in a book and you don’t want to put it down? Avalon is that way with me! I’ve read all of them about five times for each and everyone! Your book is so mysterious. These books inspired me so much, it even brought back a sad and depressing time three years ago. It had to do with my granpa. I miss him so much!

Inspired by the series, they taught me more about friendship, you can never have too many friends, courage and bravery, stay strong where ever it might take you and believing is always seeing. I hope you make more of your series all the way to book 10. Please, if you ever get a chance, can you write back to me? If you do, I’ll tell you more about my rock climbing!

From your friend and best reader,

Faye
